

WAS AFRAID HIS WIFE WOULD SHOOT HIM

ROLLIE R. PARKS ASKS THAT HIS SPOUSE BE SEARCHED; FEARS HER.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—Rollie Rivers Parks, a wholesale grocer, who was horsewhipped by his wife, Maybelle, last week, when he brought suit for divorce against her, would not enter Judge Morgan's court room yesterday, to contest his wife's motion for alimony, until he had been assured that Mrs. Parks was unarmed.

Before the case was called, Parks appeared in Judge Morgan's chambers with his aged father, and W. P. Cauby, his lawyer, and asked the judge to have his wife searched. He said he feared she had a revolver, and would shoot him on sight.

When Judge Morgan took the bench he asked Mrs. Parks if she had any firearms concealed about her person. She replied that she had not.

"Have you threatened to shoot your husband?" she was asked.

"No," she replied.

Mrs. Parks was then called to the stand to give her reasons for wanting alimony, pending the trial of the divorce suit.

She asked for $50 a month for her support, $20 for clothing and $100 counsel fees.

Judge Morgan granted her $40 alimony and $50 counsel fees.

The Parks were married in Alameda on December 30, 1903. In the divorce complaint filed last week Mrs. Parks is accused of improper conduct with Walter Leeman. When the complaint was served on her she flew into a rage and attacked her husband with a whip on the street.

McDONALD WILL CAMP IN NATIONAL FOR A WHILE

One of the most highly respected mine managers of the west is James McDonald, superintendent of the Round Mountain Mining company. Jim is a favorite with mine operators on account of his great mining ability and from the fact that in addition to his practical work he has a sort of capacity that is known as smelling ore. It is within reasonable distance underground. Such a combination is what has made him such a great success and makes his services in demand by mine operators.

On the other hand, he is an excellent good fellow and has the uniform good will of the men who do the digging under his direction. These hard-rock miners think there is no one like McDonald to work under and as always in such cases the better work is returned for the pay.

When Mac was queried on "What are you here for?" he answer with a knowing smile and just intimated you just guess. It has merited significance, for McDonald represents the remaining Goldfield millionaires and he simply said, "I am going to camp here for some time."—National Miner.

HOLE IN LAUNCH, MEN TOIL TO KEEP AFLOAT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—With the water up to the gunwales of their launch, Peter Solari and Geo. Franke, fishermen, were towed into Meiggs wharf last night after having had an eventful experience in preventing their craft from going to the bottom of San Pablo bay.

The men were returning from a fishing cruise when their launch ran into a submerged pile and had a gaping hole stove in its bottom. The water began to pour in immediately and Solari and Franke had to work desperately to keep the boat baled out.

They became so exhausted that they had to take turns fighting the rushing water.

Franke Diale, seeing that the men were more than two hours overdue, finally set out in a launch to investigate. He towed them to Meiggs wharf.

Garden Time.

"Are you going to have a garden this summer, Mr. Subbubs?"

"Yes, I've got to. As long as I have a garden I can make it an excuse for not taking my automobile out of the garage and piling up expenses for new tires and things."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MAY ROBERTS AND HER COMPANY COMING HERE

On Monday, May 10, the May Roberts company open their engagement of one week in "The Thief." Many, perhaps, have seen it in the big eastern cities, but it is the first time that it has been played through Nevada, and many will be looking forward to it, as the reports have been better than any company has received for a long time, and the opening of the May Roberts company in Goldfield was welcomed with a capacity house to witness his same play, and everyone pronounced it as the best that has visited Goldfield since Nance O'Neil played there some years ago. There are some that love comedy and only wish to laugh. In this play there is but little comedy, and it is an entirely emotional play, so the management wishes all those who only want to laugh and do not care for down-right intense acting, to reserve their patronage until some other night, for the plays are regulated to suit everyone, the comedy is interspersed with the more serious of plays.

DEATH OF VICTIM OF THE MINA MOB

Tony Lyden, commonly known as "Luning Red," who left Goldfield for Tucson, Arizona, a few days ago in the hope of recovering his health, which was shattered as the result of the tar and sanding inflicted on him about a year ago at Mina, died at Tucson last Wednesday. He had gone to Arizona in the hope of recovering from consumption, alleged to have resulted from his treatment at the hands of the mob.

It is a noticeable and notorious fact that all of the members of the bandish mob that assaulted "Luning Red" have failed to prosper since their murderous attack.

ANOTHER ONE ON THE FAMOUS JIM TOWNSEND

Will J. French, in last Sunday's San Francisco Call, says:

"James Townsend was a thorough printer and journalist. He spent 10 years in Chapultepec, Mexico, and after the surrender of that place to the American troops he came up to Monterey and then to Yerba Buena (as San Francisco was once called). Townsend was a well preserved man of 68 years at the time, and possessed an excellent imagination. One of his stories was that when he landed in Yerba Buena he could find no milk for his 11-months-old babe. He ran across a Mexican woman who had a tubful of firkin butter that had come around the Horn and which she had got from some whalers' stores. To oblige Mr. Townsend, she took the butter, washed the salt out of it, and churned it backwards until it turned into the richest of cream. The baby thrived."

"With a partner Mr. Townsend decided to start a paper at Antioch. They succeed, but financially it was a case of an 'agate newspaper in a long primer town.' After returning to San Francisco Townsend left for Reno, where he was caught in a snowdrift and died."

Townsend did not get "caught in a snowdrift and die at Reno." He went to Mono county, conducted the Homer Mining Index there for a number of years and later went to Bodie, where he edited the Miner-Index, which he sold in 1897, after which he went east and died.

W. P. TO FIX ITS ROADBED

WILL SPEND TWO MILLIONS
THIS YEAR IN FEATHER RIVER CANYON.

A San Francisco dispatch says that the Western Pacific railroad will spend $2,000,000 during the coming summer in placing its road through Feather River canyon in such condition that it will cause no more trouble such as tied it up during the winter.

A big appropriation will be made for rehabilitating the roadbed, making it possible for the engines to attain the high speed that they are capable of maintaining upon a good road.

At Keddie, where the worst slides were encountered last winter, it is planned to erect a monster masonry wall to restrain the snow from slipping down on the track and carrying rocks and dirt with it.

As the years go by there will be little trouble in keeping the road clear at all seasons, as loose material left by contractors will all be disposed of.

BANK EXAMINER HOWELL GIVES HIS VERSION OF LAW

CARSON CITY, Nev., April 6.—

All lines of procedure in conformity to the new banking law were mapped out in a satisfactory manner. Eugene Howell, the new bank examiner, says, in relation to taking charge of the already defunct banks, such as the State Bank and Trust company and the Nye & Ormsby County banks that he served a written demand upon the receivers as instructed by the law; but the parties in charge of those banks refused to comply with the demand. Mr. Howell says that the proper proceedings will be instituted at once, and the matter determined as to the legality of the new banking law, and that a decision should be rendered within the next three or four weeks.

Mr. Howell furthermore says there is nothing in the law or any provision to the effect that will not allow the bank examiner to act as receiver of these already defunct banks.

This idea, said Mr. Howell, has been advanced by the attorneys for the different receivers; but this construction of the law is entirely in error. The law plainly says "the bank examiner shall take possession of all banks and their property and accounts of whatsoever nature which may now be in the custody or possession or control of any receiver heretofore appointed under the laws of this state, and said bank examiner shall thereupon proceed to administer, liquidate, and settle the same."

Mr. Howell said the law in this particular is very specific and that he intends to follow the plain statute just as he finds it, and further there is no question as to its constitutionality, which will be determined within a brief space of time.

DRY FARMING HARD ON SHEEP

The day of the open range for the sheep herds has about passed. A reminder of this fact is the shipping of 9000 head of range sheep from Tecoma, Nevada, through Ogden to Soda Springs, Idaho, says the Ogden Standard. The animals are owned by Thomas Mercer of this city and have been ranging in the Steptoe valley, near Ely, Nevada, during the winter, having been driven south from the Idaho range early last fall. Mr. Mercer finds the country between Tecoma and Soda Springs so completely fenced off, or under cultivation without fencing, by dry farmers, that it is almost impossible to drive his hands back along the trail followed for forty years, so he has ordered forty-five double-decked cars to carry his 9000 sheep and the herders' outfits back to the lambing and shearing grounds near Soda Springs.
